Presented by

THE YEARBOOK STAFF

CRANBERRY AREA HIGH SCHOOL
SENECA, PENNSYLVANIA

FOREWORD

What is a yearbook? Some believe a yearbook should be composed of pictures and write-ups laid out according to a predetermined theme, arranged in patterns approved by the various boards of year-book authorities, and dedicated in lyric prose.

This staff believes the yearbook should be both a record of the school and of those happenings and personal incidents that have particular meaning for the graduating class. The inclusion of apparently unrelated material is not accidental, but intentional. There is no theme.

The dedication to any special instructor was also omitted, intentionally, because the staff feels that many teachers have combined their efforts to produce the graduate student. The staff appreciated the influence of all teachers, as suggested on the teachers' pages in this yearbook.

If some of the material seems to have been treated lightly, the staff, nevertheless, is fully aware of the importance of education, and the serious nature of the problems to be encountered in the working world; however, it feels that their re-statement should not be attempted in a book whose purpose is, after all, largely a record of happy memories.
